

DRI Professional
makes a difference

Over the past several years, the careers of certified professionals in Business Continuity have been outperforming their uncertified colleagues. In survey after survey, these professionals acknowledge that it is BCP certification that is making a difference in profession recognition. Disaster Recovery Institute International is proud to be the leader in offering multiple levels of certification for business continuity planning and education to prepare the seasoned BC planner, the mid-career professional, or the new practitioner for certification.

The Best Instruction in the Field of Business Continuity Planning

How does it help me and my organization?
When a company gets audited, a growing trend is for the auditor to ask if the company has a BC plan in place and if not, why not? For companies with a plan in place the next question the auditor asks is, "What makes the person who implemented this plan qualified to do so?" Being certified as a BC professional addresses that question. Additionally, whether your organization does business with the private or public sector, it will soon be required to have a BC plan in place. It may become difficult to do business without one.
